I'd love to use it, but I can't use it for longer than 30 days, and I don't want to pay full price. Because that's how all the good ones do it. You're asking your own question. You're saying "I would like to use it". Well, you've found the answer. Don't like it? Then don't use it. A: If you're being charged for the software, then you're free to use it as long as you like and only pay for what you use. That's what the trial period is for. (Note that you're paying for the software when you download and install it, whether you want to or not.) If you're talking about "stealing" software, that's just a fairly extreme way of saying that you're taking advantage of a free trial period. It's actually stealing because you're deliberately trying to deprive the developer of the chance to use the software. If you want to try out software before you buy it, sign up for a free trial period. Or, if you really want to pirate software, read this first: How to Create Your Own Free Software // Mantid Repository : // Copyright © 2007 ISIS Rutherford Appleton Laboratory UKRI. // NSCD Oak Ridge National Laboratory, European
