The main separation is accomplished on a Luna 150mm X 4.6mm I.D. 3microm modified silica-based column with gradient elution. The Polaris system is compatible with a discontinuous solvent delivery system and with recycling of the mobile phase. The procedure has good stability, linearity, accuracy and specificity, and requires 15-30 min. The detection limit is 8 microg/ml in 1 ml urine and the linear range is 5-50 microg/ml. The method is used to assay both the parent drug and its main metabolite in urine following a single oral dose of theophylline. think the zombie-creature vehicles from the Far Cry 2 trailer are zombies.
