Folder Monitor File Manager is a Windows folder monitor and viewer. Its main goal is to help organize and manage your files better, by locating all of them and making it easy to find what you are looking for. It is an essential component to any home network and enables all devices to access shared folders, regardless of the operating system used. Once it's installed on a PC, the full-functionality of the program is immediately available to all Windows machines in the network. Folder Monitor is a simple but powerful application that does a lot in terms of monitoring a folder's content and structure. You can have it open by default and view the folder where you are currently browsing, but it can be configured to always stay visible, display specific files or folders and more. You can open the Folder Monitor in various ways, including by clicking the folder's folder icon, shortcut, File Explorer icon or contextual menu item. This way, you can open the same folder that you're currently viewing or edit an existing file inside that folder without leaving your current browser.

There is a sidebar that can be displayed at the bottom of the window, along with the following four tabs, which have different purposes. When Folder Monitor is open, it will display the currently selected folder, file, recycle bin, special folders, search history, visited history and hidden files that are commonly used. If you are viewing files, just double-click the item to open it in the default application. When the sidebar is visible, you can get an overview of all the connected PCs on your network, and view their folder structure, size and access level. When the sidebar is displayed, you can choose to view the files and folders arranged by type, size or name or sort them by accessing the four toolbar tabs: the Home tab, the Recycle bin tab, the History tab

Astazan-1758 The only downside of this dock is the fact that, after I uninstalled that particular pane, I would not be able to right click at the bottom of any folder, or on my desktop, and make any changes. It was too restricting. MartinM its cool and simple, however sometimes everything is over-sensitive.. also, it can't be modified from the properties, and it doesn't automatically hide when its not being used, which is a bummer salient23 stable version but not beautiful JohnGage Gives you a single point of access to your programs which can be moved anywhere on the screen - but even that can be configured. Krio I tried all the dock I can name...Panels and DockYa are the best and work like a charm...and you can use any of the many browsers...I cannot recommend either of them enough...and believe it or not you can use all your icons in them...and you can even resize them...the tabbing is what kills me though...you can also put your things on hold and still work...tons of cool functions...good job YAS If you're looking for a robust, feature-rich app, look elsewhere, but if you're looking for a solid, stable, customizable app with a clean, uncluttered look and feel, this is your app. dan Seems reasonably stable at this point, but there are still many quirks. Billy M Unfortunately I had problems with the installer so I reinstalled and it worked fine. joey this is what a good dock should be. just about everything is over customized but it doesn't

Q: How to optimise this mysql query to get one row? I have a table like this:

id	group_id
5	1

I need to get the first row which id is 4. I wrote this query but it takes more than 5 seconds to execute. `select id from table where group_id=1 limit 1`; I cannot do this: `select id from table where group_id=1 limit 1 order by id`; because this will take more than 5 seconds for each `group_id`. Is there any other way to do this? Thanks a lot.
