Code Signing with Code Signing Certificate by Microsoft Code Signing - iOS App Development. Certificate The "Code Signing" attachment makes sure that the person using the app is really Apple and that the app is genuine. This certificate is what the App Store uses to verify that the app is working properly. In order to use Code Signing, a developer will need to pay a licensing fee through Apple. In exchange, you get a certificate from Apple that will give you the rights to the App Store, allowing you to put apps on the App Store. When a developer puts an app on the App Store, they will use the certificate to validate that the app is genuinely theirs, and is in fact actually working. Apple gives you the certificate that will tell the App Store that you own the app or not. By owning the app, they can make sure that it is the real thing, and that it does not contain any viruses. Each developer must pay an annual fee of $100 for their certificate. How to Create Code Signing Certificate To create a code signing certificate, you will need to use the iOS Developer Program. Once you are a member of the program, you will need to sign up for a developer account. If you already have a developer account you can skip to Step 6. From the Apple Developers page, go to the Certificates, Identifiers and Profiles section and click on Certificates. The first thing you should do is sign up for the iOS developer program. It is free and gives you access to the App Store, and the Certificates, Identifiers and Profiles section. On the Apple website, select Certificates, Identifiers and Profiles. You will now be able to select a profile for the certificates. After you are signed into the iOS developer program, you will be able to add your own certificates. To do this, click on the Certificates, Identifiers and Profiles option in the menu bar. You will now have to choose a code signing certificate. There are a few things you will need
